Documenta 13 : catalog 1/3, The Book of Books. artistic director Carolyn Christov-Bakargiev; Bettina Funcke
Ostfildern: Hatje Cantz, 2012
2014/061 ,01,KASSEL"2012

This volume is the book of all books: the catalog brings together essays, artists' projects, and a garland of dOCUMENTA (13)'s core themes. Contributing authors of the notebooks range from anthropologist Michael Taussig and philosophers Donna Haraway and Christoph Menke, to feminist cultural theorist Griselda Pollock and political philosopher Susan Buck-Morss, to poet Romaine Moreton and scientist Anton Zeilinger, and include above all various artists. The illustrated short biographies of all participants, combined with the exhibited artworks, offer a holistic overview of dOCUMENTA (13).

Ten fundamental questions of curating.
Jens Hoffmann

Milaan: Mousse Publishing, 2013
2014/024 ,069,HO:F"2013

Ten Fundamental Questions of Curating emerged from a desire to trace the coordinates of contemporary curatorial practice, to take stock of a profession that is constantly evolving. Through the contributions of ten curators, the ten essays in the project examine ten fundamental themes in curating. The booklets are structured as hypothetical chapters in a book that once completed, through the reflections of some of the leading figures in the contemporary scene, will try to offer an answer to the question of "what it means to be a curator today".

De Cvratoribvs: the dialectics of care and confinement. Vesna Madzosi
New York: Atropos Press, 2013
2014/22 ,069,MA:D"2013

How are we to analyze power relations in the current system of contemporary art, or the presumably non-existing censorship in this free and democratic domain? The important event that struck the art world in the last century was the appearance of a new agent on the art scene: that of a curator. The following analysis has the ambition to strip curating down to its essence, by comparing three main domains in which we find this profession active: the Roman Empire, contemporary arts, and contemporary zoos.

Artists' sessions at studio 35 (1950).
Chicago: Soberscove Press, 2011
2014/072 ,7(04),AB:S"2011

In April of 1950, about two dozen of the artists who came to be known as the Abstract Expressionists met for a series of discussions about their own work as well as about the modern scene. Nearly 60 years after the actual meetings took place, the transcript of "Artists Sessions at Studio 35 (1950)" still pulses with the heated discussions around basic artistic issues like titling, process, relationship to history, community, and professionalism. Often referenced, but rarely fleshed out, this series of closed meetings allows readers fly-on-the-wall access to the artists' discussions.

The artist's house : from workplace to artwork. Kirsty Bell

Berlin: Sternberg, 2013
2014/1 ,7(04),BE:LL"2013

The artist's house is a prism through which to view not only the artistic practice of its inhabitant, but also to apprehend broader developments in sculpture and contemporary art in relation to domestic architecture and interior space. Based on a series of interviews and site visits with living artists about the role of their home in relation to their work, Kirsty Bell looks at the house as receptacle, vehicle, model, theater, or dream space. A two-way flow from the domestic arena to the exhibition space becomes apparent, in which the everyday has a significant role to play in the merging of such developments as installation art, relational aesthetics, expanded collage, and performance art.

Crono-topologies : Hybrid Spatialities and Multiple Temporalities. Edited by Leslie Kavanaugh

Amsterdam: Rodopi, 2010
2014/070 ,7.01,CH;R"2010

The twentieth century saw many revolutions. Various transformations in the political, economic, social, technological and artistic domains. The twelve papers collected in this volume explore the consequences of conceptions of time and its relationship to space. Although originating from the revolution in mathematics and theoretical physics, these essays extend the thinking of space-time in a multi-disciplinary approach through the philosophy of space and time, social geography, post-Marxian social theory, new network theory, the philosophy of art and culture, musicology, evolutionary biology, historiography, psychoanalytic theory, and comparative literature.

Objectivity. Lorraine Daston, Peter Galison
Cambridge: MIT Press, 2007
2014/081 ,7.01,DA:S"2007

Lorraine Daston and Peter Galison chart the emergence of objectivity in the mid-nineteenth-century sciences — and show how the concept differs from alternatives, truth-to-nature and trained judgment. This is a story of lofty epistemic ideals fused with workaday practices in the making of scientific images.

The Bloomsbury anthology of aesthetics.

edited by Joseph Tanke & Colin McQuillan

New York: Bloomsbury, 2012

2014/059 ,7.013,BL:O"2012

Comprehensive survey of the field of aesthetics, with selections drawn from ancient, medieval, renaissance, modern, and contemporary sources. It provides readers with a radically new perspective on the genesis and development of aesthetic theory by including an expanded section on early modern aesthetics. The Anthology likewise pays special attention to the interdisciplinary nature of aesthetics. It introduces readers to contemporary debates by including a number of thinkers not yet anthologized.

Louis D. Brandeis, Henry Adams, et al.

New York: Dexter Sinister, 2010

2014/016 ,7.015,CU:R"2010

The Curse of Bigness exhibition book collects the reading material of curator Larissa Harris leading up to her exhibition of the same name at the Queens Museum of Art. Five texts, loosely gathered around the Progressive era in the United States and interrupted by summaries written by Dexter Sinister comprise this medium-sized publication.

Work,work,work : a reader on art and labour. Cecilia Widenheim [et al.]

Stockholm: Iaspis, 2013

2014/023 ,7.015,WO:R"2013

The relationship of art to work and the conditions of artistic production has long engaged many in the field of visual art. Work is a broad concept, the meaning of which has changed radically as a result of the social and technological transformations that have taken place over the past century. What, then, is "work" today and what is its relation to art? What is the position of the artist if "creativity" has become a commodity? How can the artist's conditions of production be described, and what role can art and architecture play in societal change?

Notes on the magic of the state. ed. Silvia Sgualdini

London: Lisson gallery, 2013

2014/065 ,7.015.4,MA:G"2013

This title explores the concept of magic and its relationship to power, specifically in regards to the formation of state identity, notions of modern sovereignty and politics. The book, in English and Arabic, accompanies The Magic of the State, two interconnected exhibitions held at Beirut in Cairo and Lisson Gallery in London in Spring 2013, which were set against a backdrop of political upheaval in Egypt.

2014/050 ,7.036(47),RU:S"2013

The collection contains numerous works on paper, including gouaches, watercolours, futurist book cover designs, sketches and studies. These items deepen understanding of the work of these Russian avant-garde artists. This part of this important collection has been reproduced and written about here for the first time.

Forms of Imagining # 2. Edited by Tessa Giblin

Dublin: Project Press, 2008

2014/018 ,7.039,FO:R"2012

This book is the second in a series of books published for the exhibition of histories based on Project Arts Centre's visual arts programme. It includes writing around a number of exhibitions and events that took place in 2008. The texts and images document and reinterpret these activities, shaping their place in the art historical timeline, but also presenting a context for their re-imagination in the present, and preserving them as records for the future.

2014/019 ,7.07,PL:E"2012

Tegen de achtergrond van het sectorplan kunstonderwijs, prestatieafspraken met het ministerie, aangescherpte accreditaties en toenemende (internationale) concurrentie heeft Faculteit Beeldende Kunst en Vormgeving van de Hogeschool voor de Kunsten Utrecht (HKU) visies verzameld op de toekomst van het kunstonderwijs. Auteurs in het boek 'Pleidooi voor polyfonie' zijn professionals uit de kunst, wetenschap, media, museumwereld en het onderwijs.

Tarzans in the media forest. Toyo Ito

London: AA Publications, 2011

2014/058 ,72.01,IT:O"2011

For 40 years Toyo Ito has not only built architecture, but written it. Since the beginning of his career he has arranged words on pages with the kind of ingenuity and precision most architects associate only with the disposition of concrete, glass, wood or steel. In Ito's hand and mind architecture is an idea. The texts in this collection feature famous essays as well as previously untranslated writings that shed new light on Ito's relationship to evolving patterns of architectural thinking and design.

Echoes in the darkness : Jannis Kounellis, writings and interviews, 1966-2002. edited by Maria Codognato and Mirta d'Argenzio

London: Trolley, 2002
2014/2 ,73,KOUNELLIS,8

Jannis Kounellis has been a major figure in contemporary art for over forty years, his work in the 1960s exploring form and material contributing to the start of the Arte Povera movement. Echoes in the Darkness reveals his vision of art and life, and expresses the ideals and questions that drive him.

Ann Lislegaard : Science Fiction.

Amsterdam: Paul Andriessse, 2008
2014/076 ,73,LISLEGAARD,1
This book is illustrated with color and black and white photographs that document the artist's multi-media installations that blur the boundaries between video, light, sound, and sculpture. An informative and annotated essay ably contextualizes the most recent work of this Norwegian born artist who divides her time between Copenhagen and New York.

Siobhan Davies Dance with essays by Marina Warner and Ramsay Burt
London: Siobhan Davies Dance, 2014
2014/26 ,73,SHIOBHAN DAVIES DANCE,1
Using Siobhan Davies's own history as a choreographer and dancer as a starting point, this new project reflects on the concept of archiving dance. Working closely with five collaborating dance artists Andrea Buckley, Helka Kaski, Rachel Krische, Charlie Morrissey and Matthias Sperling the artists consider their own embodied history and memory. When seen in a gallery context the work questions how different art forms build on their own history. The audience intermingle with dancers and the work intentionally shows process, unravelling dance and choreographic thinking in the proximity that a gallery space allows.

*Stefan Kürten walks the fine line that separates the delightful, sunlit idyll from the dark shadows along the edges of architectural scenes or lovely gardens. The detached, single-family home and its environment of greenery, flowers, and all kinds of accessories is a major subject in the artist's oeuvre. Kürten captures what is seemingly incidental about these places through his choice

*This catalogue presents a comprehensive exploration of Reinhardt's cartoon works, which he created for various publications throughout his lifetime, most notably the progressive tabloid daily newspaper PM in which his "How to Look" series first appeared in 1946. Reinhardt's comics shed light on the artist's humorous insight into art history,

Etienne-Jules Marey was an inventor whose methods of recording movement revolutionized our way of visualizing time and motion. Best remembered for his chronophotography, Marey constructed a single-camera system that led the way to cinematography. Picturing Time, the first complete survey of Marey's work, investigates the far reaching effects of Marey's inventions on stream-of-consciousness literature, psychoanalysis, Bergsonian philosophy, and the art of cubists and futurists.

2013 Special edition for Rijksakademie. In the novel a fictional detective goes about trying to answer unsolved questions. Through travel, clues, mystic rituals, experiences at the opera, poetry, and other elements, an ambiguous tale of one person's experiences in both the Western world and the Far East materializes. Themes include questioning modern urban civilization, the absence of individual identity, conflict, reality versus imagination, and the spiritual quest to establish one's life in the city at the expense of giving up on one's dream. -

The importance of being Iceland : travel essays in art. Eileen Myles

Cambridge: MIT Press, 2009

2014/25 ,82,MYLES,1

Poet and post-punk hero Eileen Myles has always operated in the art, writing, and queer performance scenes as a kind of observant flaneur. Myles travels the city—wandering on garbage-strewn New York streets in the heat of summer, drifting through the antiseptic malls of La Jolla, and riding in the van with Sister Spit—seeing it with a poet's eye for detail and with the consciousness that writing about art and culture has always been a social gesture. Culled by the poet from twenty years of art writing, the essays in The Importance of Being Iceland make a lush document of her—and our—lives in these contemporary crowds.

Pieterlen: Peter Lang, 2000

2014/40 ,82,VALERY,1

The Cahiers/Notebooks of Paul Valéry are a unique form of writing. They reveal Valéry as one of the most radical and creative minds of the twentieth century, encompassing a wide range of investigation into all spheres of human activity. His work explores the arts, the sciences, philosophy, history and politics, investigating linguistic, psychological and social issues, all linked to the central questions, relentlessly posed: 'what is the human mind and how does it work?', 'what is the potential of thought and what are its limits?'
